

As a school we have always offered a wide variety of extra-curricular and co-curricular opportunities for our students. We want to enable our young people to follow their own path and pursue an existing area of interest or one that gives them something new to explore. These opportunities come in the form of lunchtime clubs, after school teams and groups, competitions, workshops and one-off experiences or events.

Last academic year there were many lunchtime and after schools clubs on offer to students in all year groups, alongside many academic support sessions to help students with their studies. During lockdown we provided a directory of activities, competitions, challenges and online events across all subjects that students could get involved in.

Back at school, with restrictions, we are looking at new and different aways to allow students the opportunity to get involved in the wider aspects of school life. Chess has moved online, workshops with partners and outside agencies are being done via Teams, we have already signed up to take part in community events for the coming year and of course the House competitions have already begun and are as competitive as ever! Study support sessions and homework clubs are up and running and supporting students to acheive their best outside of lessons.
